

PACK OUT THE POOP

A MountainTownMagazine.com article written by Holly Battista-Resignolo

You have seen them we are sure. Bright little blobs of pink, green, and teal, sometimes black littered alongside a trail. Some are smushed and dried out others are puffy, condensing in the sun. We all know what I am talking about – PoopBags! Yuck. But I guess at least they've already been packaged, the worst one is when they are still fresh, and naked in all their glory, kicking up a stink in their immediate radius. I've seen all sorts of colours too, even orange dog poop.... that can't be healthy! Anyway, the whole aspect of leaving poop on walking trails is a big no no. Packaged or not, they need disposing of, is it really that hard?
